When planning a lesson:

1. State the standard or objective.

2. Pre-teach or focus on important vocabulary, key terms, or symbols that will be important for comprehension.

3. Activate prior knowledge: remind students what they already know about the content.

4. Create a visual component (ask yourself how a student who is deaf would access this material). Also have a digital copy of the lesson so students can access it if necessary on an iPad or computer.

5. Create an audio component (ask yourself how a student who is visually impaired would access the material).

6. Use technology to engage students.
